EasyFlex

The introduction of ever-lighter video cameras has furthered the trend to using cost effective handheld camera balance systems as opposed to full body supported systems. However, long takes as well as extensive workdays on the set, can make even the lightest camera seem unbearably heavy and steady shots become nearly impossible to produce. The ABC EasyFlex is a vest system that is designed to take the camera weight out of the operator's hand and transfer it onto the body. The EasyFlex is available as an accessory to both handheld camera balance systems: HandyMan 100 – 2000 and HandyMan Clip & Go.

... and the camera seems to float!

Spring Arm Standard

The single spring segment works to take the weight of the camera and the balance system out of your hand and transfer it onto your body. All camera movements can be made easily without strain on the operator's hand and arm.

The spring arm tension can be varied easily through an integrated adjustment mechanism or by exchange of springs.

Spring Arm Modified

Two independently working spring arm sections absorb all shock coming from the operator's movements. Thanks to its lightweight design, all camera movements can be made quickly and without useless loss of energy.

The spring arm tension can be varied easily through an integrated adjustment mechanism or by exchange of springs.

Vest

The vest system consists of two main parts:

The front of this special waist belt is made of ergonomically shaped and thickly padded synthetic material. It allows the system to sit comfortably on your hips and relieves your spine from awkward straining.

The padded back cushion adds extra comfort to the system and is available in two different sizes.
